

Our Memorial Brick Pathway leads the way to nearly 10,000-square-feet of history.

Delta Airlines began here as a crop-dusting company.

A Navy destroyer named after a Monroe man, U.S. Navy Lt. JG Roy O. Hale. He was a flyer who was killed defending the U.S.S. Lexington when it sank on May 8, 1942.

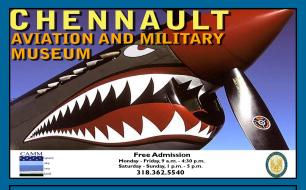

FREE ADMISSION

Museum Hours Monday — Friday, 9 a.m. — 4:30 p.m. Saturday — Sunday, 1 p.m. — 5 p.m.

> 701 Kansas Lane Monroe, LA 71203

Phone: 318.362.5540 Fax: 318.362.5545

www.sos.louisiana.gov/camm

This public document was published at a total cost of $1,255.65. Ten thousand copies of this public document were published in the first printing at a cost of $1,255.65. The total cost of all printings of this document including reprints is $1,255.65. This document was published for Secretary of State, P.O. Box 94125, Baton Rouge, LA 70804-9125 by the DOA State Printing Office to promote the museum, its exhibits and events under the authority of special exception by the Division of Administration. This material was printed in accordance with standards for printing by state agencies established pursuant to R.S. 43:31. Printing of this material was purchased in accordance with the provisions of Title 43 of the Louisiana Revised Statutes.

Chennault

Aviation and Military Museum

"Honoring the past and looking forward to the future"

JAY DARDENNE SECRETARY OF STATE

Rosemary Chennault Simrall, daughter of Gen. Claire Lee Chennault, with a painting of a Flying Tiger "flying the hump."

The Chennault Aviation and Military Museum opened its doors to the public in 2000 and was originally called the Monroe Aviation Historical Museum. The museum strives to promote and preserve Louisiana's pivotal role in our nation's aviation and military history.

Operations and alumni of the Selman Field Navigation School from WWII constitute the principal focal points of history that are preserved by the museum's collections. Of similar interest for the museum is the history and personal story of Gen. Claire Lee Chennault and the Flying Tigers, the celebrated air squadron (flying the famous Curtiss P-40 Warhawk) that engaged the Japanese in the defense of China in WWII. Chennault was raised in northeast Louisiana, attended LSU and resided in Monroe after WWII.

From WWI to space flight, we have personal artifacts, real-life stories, vintage aircraft and pioneers of flight.

A diorama depicting how Selman Field and our building (at top) appeared during World War II.

Our facility includes a state-of-the-art, 50-seat theater which is available for community events.

"Ace," the University of Louisiana at Monroe Warhawk mascot, visits with Col. Dick Daggett and Maj. Dick Sherman, former Flying Tigers shown here with Col. Daggett's P-40 replica.

Displayed here is one of our army rooms, with stories from World War I and World War II.

